The researchers would like to sincerely thank the county elections officials and staff throughout the State of California who took time to provide data to the project. Additionally, we are grateful to the Secretary of State's Office for its continuing support and interest in this project. Without their assistance, the completion of these yearly reviews and the California Elections Data Archive would not be possible.

CALIFORNIA ELECTIONS DATA ARCHIVE

INTRODUCTION

The California Elections Data Archive (CEDA) is a joint project of the Center for California Studies and the Institute for Social Research, at the California State University, Sacramento and the office of the California Secretary of State. The purpose of CEDA is to provide researchers, citizens, public agencies and other interested parties with a single repository of local election data. With over 6,000 local jurisdictions in California, the task of monitoring local elections is nearly impossible for individuals. CEDA addresses this problem through the creation of a single, cost-effective and easily accessible source of local election data. CEDA includes candidate and ballot measure results for county, city, community college, and school district elections throughout the State. CEDA thus represents the only comprehensive repository of local election results in California and one of a very few such databases on local elections in the U.S.

How the CEDA Data is Collected and Reported

Election data are collected periodically throughout each calendar year. This enables CEDA to incorporate results from special elections as well as all regularly scheduled elections. Election results from counties, cities, and community college and school districts are entered in the CEDA database from which three standard CEDA reports are generated. These reports include:

- County Elections: Candidates, ballot designations, and vote totals for all elected county offices; vote totals and text for county ballot measures.
- City Elections: Candidates, ballot designations, and vote totals for all elected city offices; vote totals and text for all city ballot measures.
- Community College and School District Elections: Candidates, ballot designations, and vote totals for all elective community college and school district offices; vote totals and text for all district ballot measures.

Ballot measures for all jurisdictions are coded according to type (e.g., charter amendment, taxes, bond measure, initiative, etc.) and to topic (e.g., education, public safety, governance, etc.).

THE CEDA PARTNERSHIP

THE CENTER FOR CALIFORNIA STUDIES

Located at California State University, Sacramento, the Center for California Studies is a public policy, public service and curricular support unit of the California State University. The Center's location in the state Capital and its ability to draw upon the resources of the entire State University system give it a unique capacity for making contributions to public policy development and the public life of California. Center programs cover four broad areas: administration of the nationally known Assembly, Senate, Executive, and Judicial Administration Fellowship Programs; university-state government liaison and applied policy research; civic education and community service through forums, conferences and issue dialogues; and curricular support activity in the interdisciplinary field of California Studies.

INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL RESEARCH

Established in 1989, the Institute for Social Research (ISR) is a multidisciplinary institute that is committed to advancing the understanding of the social world through applied research. The Institute offers research expertise and technical assistance serving as a resource to agencies, organizations, the University and the broader community. Services provided by the Institute include research and sampling design, measurement, coding and data entry, computer assisted telephone and field interviewing, mailed and Internet surveys, focus groups, data base management, statistical analysis and report production. ISR has completed numerous projects with more than 50 federal, state and community agencies, several private firms and many administrative units of the university. Faculty affiliates of the Institute offer specific content expertise in a wide variety of disciplines, including the social sciences, health and human services, engineering and education.

CALIFORNIA SECRETARY OF STATE

The Secretary of State is, among other duties, California's chief elections officer with the responsibility of administering the provisions of the Elections Code. The Secretary must compile state election returns and issue certificates of election to winning candidates; compile the returns and certify the results of initiative and referendum elections; certify acts delayed by referendum, and prepare and file a statement of vote. Recent legislation permits but does not mandate that the Secretary of State compile local election results.

TRENDS IN LOCAL ELECTIONS: 1995-2010

CEDA now encompasses 16 years of election data, including four gubernatorial election years (1998, 2002, 2006, and 2010), four presidential elections (1996, 2000, 2004, and 2008) and eight odd-numbered years devoted to local races. In addition to the 2010 election having a gubernatorial race, there were some 482 local ballot measures, and 6,022 candidates in races for local offices. This report begins with an overview of some of the multi-year election trends then continues to a discussion of the 2010 contests.

BALLOT MEASURES

Each year, California voters are asked to consider a number of governance issues and to choose among candidates vying for public office. Within local elections, there appear to be consistent features at all local election levels across elections over the 16 years of CEDA data collection. Other election characteristics seem to vary considerably from year to year, however. This variation is particularly noticeable between on-year and off-year election cycles. In the following section, the patterns and trends seen in local elections during the 16 years of CEDA data collection are summarized.

Trends in the Number, Types, and Topics of Local Election Measures

As noted in previous reports, the number of local ballot measures offered to voters clearly seems to “piggy-back” on state and national elections. From 1995 through 2010 there were, on average, 416 ballot measures per year. In even number years, the average was 588 measures, while odd years average 245. The percentage of ballot measures passing increased by four percent from 63 in 2009 to 67 percent in 2010; but the overall percentage of ballot measures passing remained at 63 percent.

- Among all the various types of ballot measures, charter amendments continued to have the largest percentage of measures passed, with more than three-quarters (77%) of charter amendment measures passing during the 16-year period. The second best success was among bond measures with two-thirds (67%) passing. Bonds were closely followed by recall measures with slightly less than two-thirds (66%) passing. However, during the past 16 years, this type of measure consistently had the second smallest number of actual measures (behind initiatives) compared with the other measure types. In terms of passage rates, following recalls were; ordinances (60%), taxes (54%), and initiatives (49%), respectively (See Trend Table A).
- Across the three government levels—county, city and school district—at which data is collected, the largest average yearly number of ballot measures were seen at the city level (207; 50%), followed by the school district (141; 34%) and county (68; 16%). However, following the trend of previous years, school districts had the largest percentage of measures passing (66%), followed by city (63%) and county (56%) (See Trend Table A).

During the 16 years of CEDA data collection, the number of ballot measures in even years peaked in 2004 with 712 measures. The current 2010 election saw 482 measures—the smallest in the history of the CEDA data collection in an even year. The passage rate for the 2010 elections cycle was 67 percent which is just above the average for even year elections and for the passage rate of measures overall.

- Among the eight topic areas for local ballot measures, education issues continue to be the most common ballot measure, with slightly more than one-third (34%) of all measures between 1995 and 2010 focused on this topic. The number of education measures has exceeded the number of measures dealing with other specific topics. (See Trend Table B).
- Earlier years have been re-coded to capture revenue measures. With this revision revenue represents 12 percent of the total ballot measures in local elections. In the 2009 election cycle revenue jumped to 29 percent of the local election ballot measures from the mid-teens seen in the previous two years. In 2010 revenue has returned to a lower rate of 20 percent (See Trend Table B).
 - o In 2010, among all county measures, revenue issues accounted for about 17 percent; but among city's measures, revenue accounted for about 31 percent of the issues.
 - o Since the 2005 election year, no revenue issues have been seen at the school district level.
- Figure 1 displays the trends for ballot measures and the percent of measures passing from 1995-2010. As can be seen in the green trend line representing the number of measures (See Figure 1), the actual number of ballot measures cyclically varies substantially between odd and even years; however, the dashed green trend line in the figure reveals a slight downward trend in the number of measures over the period. By contrast, the orange line representing the percentage of measures passed shows much more stability over time and the dashed trend line reveals a movement toward an increased percentage of measures passed during this timeframe. Thus, while we're seeing a jagged trend toward slightly fewer measures, we're also witnessing a gradual increase in the percentage of those measures passing.

- Figure 2 provides an overview of the average (mean) number of local ballot measures and the percent of those measures that passed in each of eight topic areas for the past 16 years (1995-2010). As discussed previously, ballot issues dealing with education and governance displayed the largest overall average number of measures, but also revealed the highest average passing rate among the eight topic areas (See Figure 2).

Figure 2: Average Number of Local Ballot Measures Per Year and Percent Passing by Topic for the Past 16 Years

- The level of ballot measures also appeared to have little overall impact on the passing rate for various governmental levels. County measures continue to show the lowest passing rate at 56 percent overall, with school district measures having the best passing rate about ten percent better than county measures at 66 percent (See Trend Table B).
- As reflected in previous reports, county measures showed the greatest disparity in passing rates between odd and even year elections, faring much better in odd year elections. For example, county elections witnessed a 16 percent better passing rate for tax propositions, a 34 percent better passing rate for recall measures, a 23 percent better passing rate for bond proposals (See Trend Table A).
- Among the six types of ballot measures identified in the CEDA data, charter amendments, bonds and recalls had the highest pass rates, 77 percent, 67 percent and 66 percent respectively, while initiatives and taxes had the lowest pass rates with 49 percent and 54 percent passing (See Trend Table A).

Trends in Bond and Tax Measures

Bonds and tax measures each make up slightly more than one-quarter of all the measures at 26 and 29 percent respectively, a little more than one-half (55%) of all ballot measures over the 16 years of election results tracked by CEDA. Ordinances and charter amendments, affecting policy shifts in local government, constituted another one-third (34%). Initiatives and recalls continue to account for only six percent of total local ballot measures (See Trend Table A).

- The overall percentage of measures devoted to taxes during the past 16 years has been gradually trending upward. The trend continued in 2010, although the percentage of tax measures decreased to 34 percent from a high of 51 percent in 2009 (See Figure 3).

- School districts remain responsible for the vast majority of the bonds placed before voters—about 93 percent over 16 years of data collection. Bonds continue to make up three-quarters (approximately 72%) of the six types of measures in school district elections.

In the 16 years that CEDA has been collecting data, bond measures had much higher rates of passage than did tax measures. With the 2010 election, the average pass rate for bonds remained unchanged, some 13 percent above taxes at 67 and 54 percent respectively.

- Another trend observed during the 16-year data collection is that pass rates for tax measures are consistently higher in odd-numbered years than in even-number years—an average of 59 percent in odd years compared with 52 percent for the even-numbered years. As noted above with regard to general pass rates, counties saw the biggest differences between pass rates for taxes in odd versus even years, with an average pass rate of 55 percent in odd years and 39 percent in even years. The discrepancy for odd and even years decreased slightly for cities with the 2010 election—an average 61 percent pass rate in odd years and a 56 percent pass rate in even years. In contrast, tax measures for School Districts pass at the same rate for odd and even years—an average of 59 percent (See Trend Table A).

- On the other hand, on average, pass rates for bond measures appear better in even-numbered years than in odd-numbered years (72% vs. 53% respectively). However, while bond measures are considerably more likely to pass in even years versus odd years for cities (64% vs. 52%) and in school districts (73% vs. 52%); they are more likely to pass in odd numbered years rather than even years for counties (73% vs. 50% respectively) (See Trend Table A).

Trends in Community Services Districts and County Service Areas Measures

Community Service Districts (CSDs) and County Service Areas (CSAs) were introduced just before the turn of the new century as an accommodation to the tax restrictions posed by Proposition 13. Portions of a county could form a special district and agree to tax themselves to provide services that the population as a whole might not support. CEDA began tracking community service district ballot measures in 1998. Despite considerable fluctuation in the number of CSD/CSA measures during the subsequent 13-year period, speculation that the number would increase over time has not been supported by the trend data (see the dashed trend line in Figure 3 below). As seen in Figure 3, there have been a vacillating number of CSDs/CSAs measures during this period; however, there has been a gradual decrease in the number of measures from 1998 to 2010. With the exception of 2005, the number of CSD measures increases in even years and decreases in odd years.

- As discussed in previous trend summaries, one important question is whether CSD/CSA measures lose effectiveness in terms of their passage rate as they become a larger percentage of all county measures. This year's data provides additional information to consider in this question. First, although the percentage of measures for CSDs/CSAs varied up and down through the 2005 election, the overall trend since 2006 has been downward—essentially these measures are accounting for a smaller and smaller percentage of all county measures. In 2010, they accounted for less than a quarter of county measures. This is in marked contrast to 2005 when they comprised more than one-half of county ballot measures. Moreover, the percentage of these measures and their passage rates seem to be synchronized (except for 2003 and 2007). (See Figure 4 below).

- In the 13 years of CEDA data on CSD/CSA elections (1998-2010), 276 ballot measures have presented CSD/CSA issues across the 58 counties. However, the use of CSD/CSA measures varied widely among these counties. Eight counties accounted for over two-thirds (70%) of CSD/CSA-related measures—Contra Costa (22), El Dorado (42), Kern (17), Marin (41), Riverside (19), San Diego (20), San Luis Obispo (20) and Siskiyou (12). By contrast, 47 counties have had 5 or fewer CSD/CSA measures on their ballots over the 13-year period (See Trend Table C).

- In the years since their inception, the principal type of CSD/CSA measure has involved taxes (193; 70%). Interestingly, another funding mechanism, bond measures, has only appeared as CSD/CSA proposals five times (1% of the total measures). Behind taxes, ordinances (28; 10%) and Gann Limit issues (27; 10%) were a distant second and third in terms of prevalence on the ballot. Recalls (18), bond measures (5) and advisory measures (5) together only accounted for about 10 percent of the total number of measures during the 13-year period (See Trend Table D).
 - o During the 13 years since their inception, CSD/CSA-related tax measures were passed slightly less than one-half (46%) of the time. As with other tax related ballot measures, CSD/CSA measures in this area were more apt to pass in the odd-year elections (59% pass) and more apt to fail in even years (61% fail). Including this most recent year (2010) of data CSDs/CSAs have slightly higher passage rates in terms of tax measures than counties, 46 and 40 percent respectively. On the other hand, cities do slightly better than CSDs/CSAs, passing 53 percent of their tax measures, while school districts enjoy the greatest success with these measures a 57 percent passage rate (See Trend Tables A & D).

- With the addition of the 2010 election year data, when we separate out CSD/CSA measures from all county measures, we see that non-CSD/CSA and CSD/CSA measures passed at nearly identical rates, 58 and 57 percent respectively. However, CSDs/CSAs did much better than other county measures when the ballot measure involved taxes. County tax measures that are non-CSD/CSA measures had a 41 percent pass rate, while CSD/CSA tax measures enjoyed a 46 percent passage rate (See Trend Table E).
- Public safety remains the most common focus of CSD/CSA measures, comprising slightly less than one-third of all measures (86 of the 276 measures; 31%). General services (38) was the second most prevalent focus of CSD/CSA ballot measures, followed by revenue (36), governance (34), transportation (31), public facilities (30), environment (6), and land use (4) measures.
 - o It is interesting to note that there were no governance measures in the first two years that CSDs/CSAs tracking was initiated (1998-99), but governance has appeared as a CSD/CSA issue in every election since then. Public facilities measures have appeared in all but four years (1999, 2003, 2008, and 2010). By contrast, land use, which also did not appear as CSD/CSA measures in 1998, has only appeared in two elections, 2000 and 2005. Also interesting is the fact that public safety measures, the most common CSD/CSA measure, has not appeared on the ballot in the last two odd year elections (2007 and 2009), their only absences from the ballot since 1998 (See Trend Table F).

TRENDS REGARDING CANDIDATES

The addition of the 2010 data reinforces previous findings that stable patterns have emerged with regard to the number of candidates seeking offices, and distribution of candidates across the various local offices that are tracked.

- The total number of candidates for local offices (county boards of supervisors, other county offices, city councils, and local school boards) is consistently more than twice as high in even-numbered as opposed to odd-numbered years (See Trend Table G).
- In the 16 years of CEDA data collection, school district candidates have comprised just under one half (48%) of all candidates for local offices. As might be expected given the raw number of offices at various levels of local government, candidates for city offices make up about 38 percent of the local candidates, while the smallest percentage of local election candidates reflects those seeking county offices (about 14%).
- In the on-year elections, city candidates and school district candidates are fairly similar in terms of the number of candidates. However, with the exception of the 2007 election, school district candidates have the largest number of candidates in the off-year election cycles where they make up more than half of the candidates on the ballot (See Trend Table G).

- o In three of the prior even-year elections, 2000, 2004 and 2008, there were slightly greater percentages of city candidates than of school district candidates. However, in 2010 there were more school district candidates than city candidates.
 - o The percentage of candidates running for county offices “pops” upward on on-cycle election years. In the 16 years of CEDA data collection, the county candidates averaged 18 percent of all local election candidates in the even years, but comprised only 6 percent of the candidates in the odd years (See Trend Table G).
- Over the 16 years of data collection, county candidates made up about 14 percent of all candidates in local elections (See Trend Table H).
 - o Among candidates for county offices, 36 percent were running for County Supervisor positions, while 22 percent were seeking CSD/CSA seats.
- On average, during the 16 years of CEDA data collection, slightly less than one-third (32%) of all candidates for local offices were incumbents (See Trend Table I).
 - o About 34 percent of those seeking school district seats were incumbents.
 - o Approximately 26 percent of those seeking city council positions were incumbents.
 - o About 29 percent of those seeking county supervisor seats were incumbents, however, with the exception of 1997 when there were 5 County Supervisor seat races open, there are typically no races for County Supervisor in odd-year elections.
- During the 16 year period, four out of every five (80%) incumbents running for local reelection win their respective offices (See Figure 5 and Trend Table I).
 - o Eighty four percent (84%) of those winning county supervisor¹ seats held the office.
 - o About 79 percent of incumbent city council office holders win their elections.
 - o Seventy-seven percent (77%) of incumbent school district candidates win their elections (See Trend Table I).
- In local elections, during the past 16 years, a little more than half (54%) of winning candidates are incumbents. This means that the local political area is seeing a fresh mixture of individuals comprising local elected offices and bodies with each election cycle. Conversely, this also suggests that fears of control of these institutions by a group of long-term political incumbents may be overstated.

¹ This percentage is calculated on those years in which county supervisors were normally up for election. In off years there were either no candidates or a very small number running for vacated seats.

- o Sixty-two percent (62%) of winning candidates for county supervisor positions are incumbents.
- o About 50 percent of candidates for city council who win are incumbents.
- o Fifty-three percent (53%) of winning school district candidates are previous office holders (See Trend Table I).

2010 ELECTION DATA

BALLOT MEASURES

California voters faced a total of 482 county, city and school district local ballot measures in 2010 of which 322 or 67% were enacted. The number of measures for 2010 is below the average of 588 measures in even numbered years since 1995, but the pass rate in 2010 was above average for even numbered years. Tax measures were the most common type, accounting for 164 or 34% of all measures. Frequent topics included education (149 measures 31%), governance (138 measures or 29% of all), revenue (95 measures or 20%) and land use (30 measures or 6%) (See Trend Table A and Trend Table B).

Bond mania was not as prominent in 2010 as in some prior years, but even in difficult fiscal times local voters were asked to consider many substantial bond measures, most of which were approved. More specifically, voters faced 97 separate local bond measures, approving 70 (72%) and rejecting 27 (See Trend Table A). Examples of prominent approved bond measures included a $413,000,000 fire, earthquake, and emergency response measure in the City and County of San Francisco, a $210,000,000 proposal to improve student safety and facilities in the Berkeley, and a $270,000,000 measure for a variety of purposes in the Fresno Unified School District.

The 2009 CEDA Report noted the unusual number and high success rates of local tax measures. That year a total of 99 tax measures faced local voters of which 66 or 67% were approved. This pattern of approval for local tax measures continued in 2010. Sixty percent of tax measures were approved in 2010 (See Trend Table A). For example, voters in Mono County extended a prior utility users tax to fund mobility, recreation, and arts and culture programs. Voters in the Southern Coachella Valley Community Services District in Riverside County increased the annual special taxes per residential unit to $85.00 to fund supplemental law enforcement services. Additionally San Mateo-Foster City School District voters increased the expiring school parcel tax by $96 for seven years. But not all measures were so successful; for instance, a Mendocino County measure to enact the "County Vital Services Transactions and Use Tax" managed to garner only 30% approval.

As always, local voters faced ballot measures consistent with California's tradition of eclectic, entertaining and sometimes eccentric politics. In 2010 these included:

- A San Francisco proposal to amend the charter to require establishment of a film commission, which failed;
- A City of Berkeley proposal to allow residential medical cannabis collectives, with up to 200 square feet of cultivation, which passed;
- A City of Richmond measure to require every person engaged in a marijuana business pay a general business license tax of five percent of its gross receipts, which passed;
- A Crescent City proposal prohibiting the public water system to deliver any product, substance, device, element, medicine or preventative agent, including fluoride; that measure failed.

County Measures. In 2010 there were a total of 64 county ballot measures across 23 counties. Of the 64 county measures, 34 or 53% passed while 30 or 47% failed. The bulk of county measures were tax measures (25) and ordinances (22). The most common topic was governance, with 23 such measures appearing on county ballots.

City Measures. Voters cast ballots on a total of 270 city measures of which 192 or 71% passed. The overall total of city measures is less than the average in even numbered year election since 1996 of 298 measures, though the 71% pass rate is the second highest in any even numbered year since 1995. The majority of city measures dealt with governance (115 or 43%) and revenue (84 or 31%). Common types of city measures were taxes (94 or 35% of all city measures) and ordinances (91 or 34%). There were also 42 proposed charter amendments, most of which passed.

School District Measures. The year 2010 saw a total of 148 school district ballot measures of which 96 or 65% were approved. In comparison, the average for even numbered years since 1995 is 185 with a 72% pass rate and for all years 141 with a 66% pass rate. Therefore the passage rate for 2010 was below average for an even numbered year and comparable to the overall average. Bond measures accounted for 92 of the 148 school district measures.

CANDIDATE ELECTIONS

A total of 6,022 Californians ran for local elected office in 2010, which is the highest number for any year since CEDA has been active. Candidate elections took place at all levels of local government: counties, states, and school districts.

County Races. California counties generally elect their officials in even-numbered years. Counties elect five-member board of supervisors (their four year terms are staggered so not all seats are up each year) except the City and County of San Francisco which has an eleven member board. Counties also elect judges, sheriffs, clerks, district attorneys and members of the governing boards of community service districts (CSD), which are agencies of the county.

Incumbent county supervisors were usually successful in seeking reelection with 83% of incumbents winning their races. However, incumbents accounted for only 61% of all 126 winners: 49 non-incumbents were elected, 16 of who beat incumbents. Boards of Supervisors thus experienced significant turnover in 2010 through a combination of voluntary retirements and incumbent losses.

Tax collectors and treasurers were the county officials most likely to be reelected; all 27 such people who sought reelection won. By contrast, incumbent directors of community service districts, community service areas, and community planning areas were most likely to lose; fully 25% of incumbents in these positions who sought reelection were unsuccessful.

City Races. California cities elected mayors, council members, treasurers, clerks, and a handful of other officials in 2010. By far the most common contests were races for city council.

A total of 569 incumbent city council members sought reelection of which 469 or 82% were victorious. This is a rate comparable to the portion in prior years.

School District Races. More than 1,300 Californians were elected to school boards in 2010. Of these 784 or about 59% were incumbents. Incumbent board candidates won at a rate of 79% which was lower than the incumbent reelection rate for county supervisors and city council members.

Recall Elections

The California Constitution allows voters the possibility to remove a local elected official if a sufficient number of voters sign a recall petition and a majority approves the recall in a subsequent election. In 2010 voters passed judgment on 27 local officials facing a recall election; 21 (78%) of these recall efforts were successful. Over the years most recalls have been successful; it is relatively rare for local office holders to face a recall effort, but when sufficient signatures are gathered to place the decision on the ballot the official is most commonly replaced.
